Mohawk, N.Y. — With cold weather starting to settle in, U.S. Rep. Richard Hanna spoke about the importance of weatherization efforts outside of a home currently undergoing such improvements.

Hanna on Monday said homeowners can save hundreds of dollars when the proper weatherization renovations are completed. He said the federal Weatherization Assistance Program, which operates through the state Homes and Community Renewal agency, enables low-income families to reduce their energy bills by making their homes more energy efficient.
